

Leadership Elements for Aviation Professionals

3 DAY COURSE

Presented by ServiceElements International in association with FlightSafety International In-Center or Online Instructor-led LiveLearning®

Leadership Elements for Aviation Professionals is designed to help tomorrow’s aviation leaders in the flight department. With the advent of new technologies and fast moving expectations, combined with the added complexity of multiple generations in the workplace leads to many challenges. However, with proper leadership skills, these challenges could become opportunities.

Most flight departments rate technical competency as the most important reason for being promoted to a management/leadership role. A majority of aviation professionals rate their technical abilities higher than their people-related skills/abilities. The value proposition for all aviation departments is shifting and the leadership must be prepared to lead.

This three-day course dives into the environment of all flight department managers through several lenses of leadership and team building, while addressing critical challenges and opportunities for growth.
